DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

As to claim 1, how can a single "mounting element comprise two spacing members" (line 2 from last)? Note that the members of which refer to two different fitting cylinders 18,19. Possibly, "element" should have read structure.

As to claim 4, claim 1's "clamped" (line 2 from last) limitation does suggest a level of support between the profiled part and sensing head, contrary to claim 4's "without being supported thereon" (italics added, last line, claim 4) limitation. Thus, claim 4 is internally inconsistent.

As to claim 13, how can the same single element have two spaced members? ("element having two spacing members", lines 9,10)? Also, "the two-parts of the profiled part" (italics added) lack antecedent basis.

As to claim 14, this claim states that the sensing head protrudes into the profiled part "without" (line 6 from last) being supported when the device is "finally assembled" (line 7 from last), and yet states that there is a level of clamping ("clamping" on line two from last) between the head and the same profiled part. Thus, claim 14 is internally inconsistent. Also, "the two parts" (line 4 from last) lacks antecedent basis.

Claims 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reference DE8616206.6.

The reference teaches (Figure 2) a geometric device for length measurement system, including: sensing head 27,28,20 and rule 21,22 sensed by it. The rule is mounted within a profiled part 3. The sensing head is held within the profiled part by two spacing members 30. The head is releasably connected to the profiled part, when the head is positioned within portion 3, prior to attachment of portion 2. The members are clamped within grooves of the profiled part 3/2, the grooves being between the sensing head and the profiled part. The device of Figure 2 is illustrated in Figure 3, where the head is connected to structure.

It is not clear if the connecting "structure" (sentence immediately above) is a machine, and it not clear if the rule is connected to a second machine.

As to claims 13 and 14, it would have been obvious to utilize the reference's measurement system to measure relative displacement of two machines as it is "known" (p. 1, line 14, Applicant's written specification) to employ devices that measure relative movements which are known to be accurate.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
